with our distinguished guest from the USA

Rabbi Dr Ivan Lerner

Sunday 6 February 2011 (10.30am - 1pm)

Jews, Israel, Faith & Doubt

The new anti-Semitism is anti-Zionism. Logic and intelligence have given way to incredible accusations against the Jews and Israel. How can we strengthen our faith in light of these challenges? What should we be doing?

Maintaining goodwill when saying 'No'

Many people say 'yes' when they really want to say 'no'! Sometimes we say 'yes' to be liked or accepted - sometimes it seems easier than fighting. The challenge, at home and at work, is how to say 'no' while minimizing the resulting fall-out.

RABBI DR. IVAN LERNER is a world-renowned clinical and industrial psychologist. His experience as a successful elementary and high school principal, a dynamic community Rabbi and an effective personal therapist make him a much sought-after lecturer. Dr. Lerner's articles on marriage, parenting and family issues have been reprinted in Australia, South Africa, England and the United States. When conducting professional development workshops for educators, management seminars for executives and delivering lectures on sexuality or faith, Dr. Lerner's charismatic style always leaves his audiences wanting more!
